From the Rector: Nearness in Distance

We're all living into a new reality. We're all, and I mean all, living with the anxiety of pandemic which is affecting the globe. We have been asked to stay at home, to not congregate in public places, to self-isolate for the sake of slowing the spread of this disease with the intent of not overwhelming our medical capacities. And, most strikingly, we've been asked to keep our distance. Specifically, as we make the necessary trips to pharmacies and grocery stores or take a walk in our local neighborhood, we are asked to maintain a social distance of 6 feet from other people. It's hard. We're social creatures. We are used to being with and around each other and sharing our stories: our grief and our worry, our anxiety and fear, our hope and our joy.

It's precisely this need for social interaction that demands we find and employ ways to be near to each other even while we are being asked to remain distant. Our presiding bishop, the Rt. Rev. Michael Curry, makes a point of identifying that what we are asked to do is "physical distancing," not "social distancing." We must still be social. We must still connect with our friends, our neighbors, and our loved ones across the country and across the world. And, we live in a day and age when that social network is available through electronic means.

Now, truth be told, seeing someone's face on a Zoom call is not the same as shaking their hand in the greeting line. I don't believe technology will ever satisfy our needs for personal interaction. (Unless, of course, the holodecks of the USS enterprise become a reality sooner than I expect.) But we do our best with what we have. While our technology doesn't allow for physical touch, it does allow us to touch each other's hearts. It brings me great joy every time I Zoom with members of the parish, for our Thursday Morning service, our Saturday service, staff meetings, vestry meetings, committee meetings. In each one, we are present with one another, seeing one another, telling stories, sharing dreams, and supporting one another in our anxiety and fear.

I wonder if that's what it was like in the early church when the congregations would receive a letter from Paul. I wonder if it brought tears to their eyes as they recalled that, as a community of faith, we are connected to others in and around the globe. I'm almost certain it gave Paul strength and courage (if not, at times, anger and frustration) to receive letters from his parish families. We discover, no matter how independent we think we are, we need each other and we are called to be community—not a group of individuals but a Holy people of God living into the kingdom of God.

Even in the midst of our physical distancing, we continue to be connected in ways that are deeper than our own understanding. We are connected to each other, to the world, to the created order through the one who creates, redeems, and sustains all. We are connected, one to another, through the love of God which continues to flow through the world regardless of the mandates to adhere to physical separation.

Let us rejoice in the nearness we are promised with one another through our Lord and savior. Let us recall with joy the times we broke bread together and proclaimed the truth that we are all made one body through the one bread. Let us look with hope and eager anticipation toward that time when we can celebrate that truth again, in community, physically present with one another. And, in the meantime, let us give thanks to God for the gift of the Holy Spirit which binds us, one to another.

Brothers and sisters, we are near to each other because God is nearer to us all than we can ever ask or imagine!

Let's Stay Connected

It's so important for us to be in touch with one another.

In addition to our worship times, and Sunday morning forum group meetings, we would like to offer an opportunity for parishioners to have a Zoom "Check In" meeting during the week. The first one will occur on Thursday, April 2nd from 11 to 12. This hour would be a chance for anyone who wants to talk and listen to each other. It will be open-ended, without a specific topic, but moderated so that everyone gets a chance to be heard.

If you would like to participate, please contact Jane Andrews, jmlandrews@gmail.com. Jane will send you the Zoom link to the meeting. Jane, who has many years of experience leading groups, has agreed to be the convener/moderator for the first session. If there is on-going interest in this, we may have rotating conveners.

Please join us. Stay connected. Let us know how you are doing!

How to Zoom!

Zoom is a video conferencing platform that has been used by many business and the Episcopal Diocese of San Diego for years. It provides both video and audio. Video is not necessary and zoom meetings can be joined by phone. Meeting participants can use zoom free of charge.

You can join a meeting:

- through a meeting link sent via email or instant messaging
- through a link at the All Souls web page
- from the Zoom desktop and mobile application
- from a landline or mobile phone. (Note: If you are joining via telephone, you will need the teleconferencing number provided in the invite and the meeting ID.)

Before joining a Zoom meeting on a computer or mobile device, you can download the Zoom app from the Zoom Download Center. Otherwise, you will be prompted to download and install Zoom when you click a join link.

You can also join a test meeting to familiarize yourself with Zoom.

When you join a meeting from your computer, smart phone, or tablet, you will be asked about your audio connection. Using internet audio will preclude the need to dial-in to the teleconference.

And, as you join a meeting, often times your camera is defaulted to “off.” You’ll find buttons on the zoom screen for turning on and off your camera and also muting and unmuting your audio.

You can also change your “view” of the meeting from “Speaker View” (which puts the person speaking in a big image at the center of your screen) to “Gallery View” which allows you to see all who are attending. And, if we fill up more than one screen, you can scroll to the right and left to see others!

If you need more help, please let Fr. Joe know. We’ll do all in our power to keep you connected and ready to go!

Tips and Tricks for Zooming

If you haven't video conferenced before, here are some tips to help you along:

1. Test your set-up. Zoom has test meetings set up and you can check your video and your audio before logging into a meeting or church service. This will also give you a chance to test your internet connection.
2. Use the “Mute” button. Especially when in group meetings. It's always best to mute yourself unless you know you need or want to be heard. That will eliminate background noise and reduce the possibility of feedback.
3. Define your call area. If you'll be using your camera, be mindful of what and who is behind you. When I log into a meeting, I usually make sure there is wall or bookshelf behind me to avoid the possibility of others walking into the call un-

Plans for Holy Week and Easter

This will be Holy Week and Easter unlike anything I've ever seen. We will not be gathering in person and, as such, we will likely grieve the loss of our beautiful liturgies. We'll miss the Palm Sunday procession, the Maundy Thursday foot washing, the veneration of the cross on Good Friday, and the joyous first Eucharist of Easter at the Great Vigil.

But, we will gather. We'll gather and worship together as we live stream services. They'll be different, no doubt. And they will give us the opportunity to try new things, to engage people in their homes, to walk these last days with Jesus and come to the joy of the resurrection from our homes. These services will be communal but will also be personal, meaningful, and an opportunity for us to be the actors of the liturgy from our homes, with our families.

Stay tuned for more information as our plan is in development. Together we will celebrate Palm Sunday, the Triduum, culminating with the Easter Vigil, and the celebration of Easter Day.

God bless you all! Christ has died. Christ is Risen. Christ will come again.

From the Senior Warden by Linda Parker

During this most peculiar time, as my husband Brad, Buddy (our 6 month old puppy) and I walk the streets around our neighborhood multiple times a day, we are offered a chance to be more observant than usual.

Spring flowers are blooming, more families are out walking, riding bikes together and playing in their yards. Neighbors are talking from the appropriate distance. Complete strangers are smiling and greeting each other. It is clear that, while we are doing all that we can to do our part in the fight against the spread of the pandemic, we still crave the human bond and seek to reach out to each other.

So it is with our beloved All Souls' community. I imagine that you, like I, miss attending Eucharist, praying together, seeing our friends, feeding our souls each week. Even though it isn't quite the same, we are fortunate to live in a time when we can remotely attend the weekly services we cherish.

Do go online and take part in these services through the links on the allsoulspointloma.org website. You will be so glad that you did!

Please keep each other, Fr. Joe, Mother Terry, along with their family and all of our Clergy, staff and church community in your prayers. Also, please continue to honor your pledges and give as you are able. Our parish has ongoing financial commitments that do not respect the coronavirus.

Until we meet again, online, by phone or in person, may God bless you.

Even in these times of isolation, we can discover the community of the Saints in Light by engaging with Lent Madness. It's underway and we've made it through the Sainly Sixteen. There are eight hopefuls remaining in the bracket:

- Herman of Alaska
- Harriete Tubman
- Hildegard of Bingen
- Brother Lawrence
- Margaret of Costello
- Joanna the Myrrhbearer
- Joseph
- Elizabeth Fry

Can't Make it to Online Church?

Our Sunday morning services are currently being streamed on-line and those videos remain on our Facebook page to be viewed again and again. Simply visit our Facebook page, www.facebook.com/allsoulspointloma and scroll down to find the video.

If you just like hearing the sermons, we'll still be posting the sermons on our web page when we yank them off the video stream. So, check-in from time to time. Sermons will be posted at allsoulspointloma.org/sermons.

From the Junior Warden by Bill Cobb

Shortly after I graduated from college, my girlfriend's father (a Methodist minister) and I were talking when he pointed out to me that every time he found his mind dwelling on someone he knew, he would call them on the phone. Invariably, it would turn out that the person he called needed to get that call. Sometimes they were in crisis. Sometimes they just had something they had to communicate. As we find ourselves and our church thrust into this detachment from physical contact with others, we might want to use some of the time at home contacting those who are in our thoughts. Call, email, send a card or letter, but get in touch. Let them know that they have importance in our lives and that they are loved.

The other thing I'm thinking about is the need for all of us to take care of ourselves as well. The next few weeks should not mean we are kept in isolation. Make sure you are in touch with others. And please take advantage of the live streaming of our worship services.

As the British music hall song from World War II says, "I know we'll meet again some sunny day." Easter will happen, whether we are together or not.

Another Way to Stay Connected

Father Joe invited me to tell you about an electronic newsletter I started. It's called Word/Smith™, It's free, short, delivered once a month into your e-mail in-box, and your information is never shared. Its purpose is to spread light. Each month has twenty 'voices' discussing a theme. March's theme is 'Settling In and Settling Down', (the Coronavirus), and I am delighted to tell you that this issue features our own beloved Father Joe as one of the 'voices' discussing ways to maintain community during this difficult time. If you'd like to see what he has to share, this link (checked for safety), will take you right to the sign-up form:

<http://bit.ly/WordSmithSignUp>

Or use this link (checked for safety) to take you to the website where you can sign up. <https://www.susanarnoutsmith.com/#mailchimp>

Editor Rob Healey has done a fantastic job including comprehensive reputable sites dealing with the virus.

And the 'voices' are rich, thoughtful and diverse. I am so grateful Father Joe is gifting the larger community with his ideas during this challenging time, and especially, with his kind and compassionate spirit.

--Word/Smith™ Susan Arnout Smith.

Settling In and Settling Down

We've seen or experienced shortages in grocery stores. Cruise ships with passengers in quarantine. Airports jammed. The markets tanking and rebounding and tanking again. The schools and places of worship closing down. Questions about whether to go on trips or reschedule, adhere to our routines of working out or going out. And especially, whether we need to keep distance even from members of our own families.

Our challenge today is how do we maintain a sense of community, when the world is telling us to isolate? That our safety and indeed, our lives, depends on that distance?

This Month's Gracious Rohr: Love Alone Overcome Fear

By Lorraine Padden

On Thursday March 19th, Father Richard Rohr offered the following contemplation in response to the Covid-19 outbreak. May his words nourish and comfort us all during this time of great uncertainty.

It is shocking to think how much the world has changed in such a brief time. Each of us has had our lives and communities disrupted. Of course, I am here in this with you. I feel that I'm in no position to tell you how to feel or how to think, but there are a few things that come to mind I will share.

A few days ago I was encouraged by the Franciscans and by the leadership team here at the CAC to self-quarantine, so I've been in my little hermitage now for three or four days. I've had years of practice, literally, how to do what we are calling "social distancing." I have a nice, large yard behind me where there are four huge, beautiful cottonwood trees, and so I walk my dog Opie every few hours.

Right now I'm trying to take in psychologically, spiritually, and personally, what is God trying to say? When I use that phrase, I'm not saying that God causes suffering to teach us good things. But God does use everything, and if God wanted us to experience global solidarity, I can't think of a better way. We all have access to this suffering, and it bypasses race, gender, religion, and nation.

We are in the midst of a highly teachable moment. There's no doubt that this period will be referred to for the rest of our lifetimes. We have a chance to go deep, and to go broad. Globally, we're in this together. Depth is being forced on us by great suffering, which as I like to say, always leads to great love.

But for God to reach us, we have to allow suffering to wound us. Now is no time for an academic solidarity with the world. Real solidarity needs to be felt and suffered. That's the real meaning of the word "suffer" – to allow someone else's pain to influence us in a real way. We need to move beyond our own personal feelings and take in the whole. This, I must say, is one of the gifts of television: we can turn it on and see how people in countries other than our own are hurting. What is going to happen to those living in isolated places or for those who don't have health care? Imagine the fragility of the most marginalized, of people in prisons, the homeless, or even the people performing necessary services, such as ambulance drivers, nurses, and doctors, risking their lives to keep society together? Our feelings of urgency and devastation are not exaggeration: they are responding to the real human situation. We're not pushing the panic button; we are the panic button. And we have to allow these feelings, and invite God's presence to hold and sustain us in a time of collective prayer and lament.

I hope this experience will force our attention outwards to the suffering of the most vulnerable. Love always means going beyond yourself to otherness. It takes two. There has to be the lover and the beloved. We must be stretched to an encounter with otherness, and only then do we know it's love. This is what we call the subject-subject relationship. Love alone overcomes fear and is the true foundation that lasts (1 Corinthians 13:13).

Music at All Souls'

MUSIC AT ALL SOULS' CORONA-TIDE EDITION

Just three weeks ago, who could have imagined that we'd all be having to be in lockdown and communicating through FaceTime, Zoom, and similar platforms. We are in a new reality, dictated by our current health crisis.

Right about now, our choirs (Parish Choir & Choristers) would have been busy preparing music for Holy Week and Easter Day. We now we find ourselves prioritizing our health and that of our families, plus the importance of staying connected. Despite this change, Music at All Souls' remains committed to ministry, and to spreading the Gospel through creative means.

If you are feeling isolated, do not hesitate to reach out to me. In the meantime, I encourage you to find solace in much of the music that would have been offered this Holy Week, including Easter Day. I'm including those links below for you to peruse on YouTube. Also, you can find offerings from the All Souls' choirs on Music at All Souls' (Facebook), or the main All Souls' Facebook page. God willing, we'll be able to worship together again in the near future.

THE ALL SOULS' CHOIRS ON ZOOM!

We've been having some fun staying connected via ZOOM!

From the Stewardship Committee by John Brown

The newly appointed vestry have tapped John Brown to head the Stewardship Committee. The intention is to build on the great ongoing work of this committee and to find new ways to connect God's generosity with our own. Engaging in stewardship is an opportunity to explore our spiritual relationship with all of God's gifts, including our money. Through our stewardship we can grow more deeply connected to God as we show our gratitude for God's generosity by contributing to the well being of our church and the world. Our generosity is in response to the gratitude we have for God's never-failing love for us.

One of the ways to do this is to find new opportunities for giving that will open sources that are new to us. We want to expand our giving beyond our annual campaign and fundraisers, to a year round effort.

The Stewardship Committee will be looking at ways to support our largest fundraiser, The Home Tour, by soliciting sponsorships from new sources that can underwrite expenses and increase the bottom line for this essential event.

All Souls' Legacy Circle program has done an incredible job of recognizing those who have remembered All Souls' in their wills and estate planning. We want to help others understand how important such gifts are for the future of All Souls' and work with them to add us to their plans. It is also possible for those who are planning gifts to make them sooner and enjoy the benefits of seeing their gifts working for All Souls' while they are still living.

We will also be exploring grant writing efforts and increasing the number of funding requests we send out annually.

If you are interested in being part of the Stewardship Committee, please let Father Joe know and we will be in touch. We meet for an hour or so on the 2nd Tuesday of the month.

UTO In-Gathering

Our plan was to collect full UTO boxes on Palm Sunday and send the aggregate donation onto the United Thank Offering. However, as we will be worshipping at our homes on Palm Sunday and into Easter Season, we will not be able to return our boxes.

This is an excellent opportunity to continue making donations to your UTO box in thanksgiving for God's many gifts. There is much to be thankful for in this time. We'll collect the boxes when we meet again as a congregation in our church! Stay tuned.

An Update on our Finances

January and February were pretty normal months, chugging right along. And then... pandemic. We are doing our best to trim our expense and continue to seek support for our income. Ministry continues in the parish. The staff and the clergy, along with the vestry and other ministry leads, continue to create community and bring us together in new ways to worship, to visit with one another, to stay connected. Now, more than ever, if you are able to make your pledge, is an important time to continue contributing to our mission and ministries.

And remember, if you're a pledger, your pledge envelopes already the church's address printed on them. You can simply make out your check and drop it in the mail. God bless you!
